Miky King's Kuro Pearl burger and Kuro Diamond burger, recently reintroduced in Japan, come with a black bun, black sauce and black cheese in addition to black pepper, and heavy beef patties (Kuro means black in Japanese). In 2012 and 2013, these burgers were made available as a limited edition item, only in Japan.

Why does a black burger make a comeback year after year only in a specific country ? What makes the Japanese take up this dish, which most of us would find unbelievable ?

The Japanese have long been including black food in their diet, from black soyabean, to black vinegar drinks, black rice, black mushrooms. In most other cultures, a black ingredient may be added here and there, but the colour has usually been associated with decaying or fungus infected food.

Experimenting with weird colours is not new in the food industry. In 2000, Heinz had experimented with their Green Sauce, dubbed as ET Squirt. During the next three years, they introduced three more variations of this ketchup, which got discontinued in 2006. In 2012, Miky King with Heinz reintroduced the green ketchup concept.

Colour cues transmit important non-verbal information about emotions, feelings and moods, says David Givens in the Nonverbal Dictionary. Symbolically, black stands for darkness, power, decay, mystery, wisdom, death, atonement and protection.

All said the very idea of a black burger seems highly experimental. Kudos to Burger King for trying out the unconventional and to the Japanese for not rooting to food stereotypes.

1b	Read the passage carefully and answer the questions / complete the statements that follow : In July 1976, my wife Mary, Son Jonathan 6, daughter Suzanne 7, and I set sail from Plymouth, England to duplicate the round-the-world voyage made 200 years ago by Captain James Cook. For a long time, Mary and I-a 37 year old businessman-had dreamt of sailing in the wake of the famous explorer, and for the past 16 years we had spent all our leisure time honing our seafaring skills in British waters. Our boat Wavewalker, a 23 metre, 30 ton wooden beauty, had been professionally built, and we had spent months fitting it out and testing it in the roughest weather we could find. The first leg of our planned three year 105,000 kilometre journey passed pleasantly as we sailed down the west coast of Africa to Cape Town. Before heading east we took two crew men-American Larry Vigil and Swiss Herb Seigler-to help us tackle one of the roughest seas, the southern Indian ocean. On our second day out of Cape Town, we began to encounter strong gales. For the next few weeks, they blew continuously. Gales did not worry me, but the size of the waves was alarming-up to 15 metres, as high as our main mast, December 25 found us, 3,500 kilometres east of Cape Town. Despite atrocious weather, we had a wonderful holiday complete with a Christmas tree. (a) Why did the narrator set sail with his family from Plymouth ? (b) The length of the Wavewalker was _____ . (c) Who were the two crewmen with them ? Why were they with them ? (d) Gales did not worry the author. Then what had worried him ? (e) 'Strong winds' refer to _____ .	5
